

INT NIGHT. TV ON, HEAR SOUNDS OF THE END OF A DOCTOR WHO EPISODE.

Two soldier guys are sitting on the couch watching Doctor Who. After closing music fades out, both sit for a second.

#1: God I LOVE Doctor Who!

#2: Hell yeah! That was awesome! Though where he went wrong in this episode is not creating a secret phrase or something so they can tell when they are talking to each other and when it is a shape shifting alien.

#1: Yeah, well, hindsight is 20/20.

#2, getting an idea: Oh! Oh! WE should create a secret phrase, just in case we get invaded by shape shifting aliens!

#1: We're not going to get invaded by shape shifting aliens.

#2: How do you know? How do you know it hasn't already happened? OOOOH!!! How do I know YOU'RE not a shape shifting alien????

#1:Dude, I am not a shape shifting alien.

#2: AAAH-HAH! But that is exactly what a shape shifting alien would say!

#1: (exasperated sigh) God, I am NOT a shape shifting alien!

#2: But how do I KNOW? You wouldn't create a secret phrase. That is ex-AC-taly what a shape shifting alien would do. They wouldn't want to get caught.

#1: This is so stupid. Actually, if I were a shape shifting alien I would do it just to throw your suspicion away from me.

#2: Oh. Good point.

#1: Besides shape shifting aliens
aren't real. Doctor Who isn't real. None of it is real. It's just a tv show.

Right after #1 says this we hear a snippet of Doctor Who being offended, the sound of a door closing and the sound of the TARDIS taking off as the one in the background disappears.

Both look at each other for a moment.

#1: I, uh, hm, kind of assumed
that was yours.

#2: I was hoping it was my birthday present. I guess it wasn't. Think he'll come back?

END